Description

Sailing from Puerto Pañuelo (Pañuelo Port,) on the Llao Llao peninsula, we will navigate for about one hour along the Blest arm on Nahuel Huapi Lake, passing by iconic places as the Centinela Island where the Perito Francisco Pascasio Moreno, father of National Parks in Argentina, rest in peace. We will arrive to Blest Bay and during the tour we will visit Cascada de los Cántaros (Cántaros Waterfall.) Later on, after a walk through the lush vegetation of the Valdivian rainforest, we will be arriving at Lago Cántaros (Cántaros Lake,) the mouth of the waterfall, where you can witness the overwhelming sight of a 1,500-year-old larch tree. A short 5 minute sail later, you will finally arrive at Puerto Blest, a place that has amazed tourists from all over the world. From there, you'll be able to tour the bay and the shores of Lago Frías and its peculiar green waters, which originate at one of the glaciers on Cerro Tronador, the natural border between Argentina and Chile.

Lago Frías Extension

This extended tour departs by bus from Puerto Blest for a 3 km ride to Puerto Alegre (Alegre Port.) The tour continues on a modern boat ride through Lago Frías (Frías Lake.) The peculiar green waters are the result of minuscule particles of pulverized rock, caused by the glacier grinding against the rocky walls of Cerro Tronador, whose striking white summit stands out over the wooded landscape, a sight only available from a boat. After another 20 minutes, you arrive at Puerto Frías (Frías Port,) next to the Chilean border, for a short stop before taking the tour back to Pañuelo Port.
