Description

After a one hour sail, departing from Puerto Pañuelo on the imposing Llao Llao peninsula, you arrive at the Quetrichue peninsula, location of the Bosque de Arrayanes, north-east of Lago Nahuel Huapi.

The myrtle (called "quetrichue" in the mapuche language) is a bush with an exquisite saffron color and white flowers. In this place, the only one in the world, the bush takes a tree-like appearance and creates a magical and rare forest. You'll sail again to Puerto Anchorena, on Isla Victoria, where you'll find lush vegetation that offers an incredible view. Following the trails of this beautiful and thousand-year-old island, you'll reach Playa del Toro, where you can see the paintings made by the native peoples that used to live in the area, surrounded by a magnificent volcanic-sand beach, an unforgettable and magical experience.

Specialized guides from the National Park will be by your side at all times and will provide accurate and necessary information for this tour to be even more rewarding.
